THE 1990 SEASON -- IN THE HOME STRETCH

MINUTES OF NEBCA MEETING HELD ON SEPTEMBER 2, 1990

Called to order by President Steve Wetmore. Details concerning the Fall Foliage Trial were the business at hand. This year's trial will have to be funded entirely by NEBCA as no outside sponsors were found. It was agreed to try to keep the trial budget as low as possible. It was voted to not have prizes for all the qualified dogs this year. There will be prizes for the top ten dogs in the Fall Foliage Trial as well as the high points competition. It was voted (and passed) that NEBCA provide not more than $400.00 to pay for a judge for the Fall Foliage Trial.

BOOT - PART 5 (April & May)

Note: Once again we find ourselves a bit behind in printing Beverly's progress with Boot. We will try to continue through the rest of the Fall Supplements to catch up. ed's.

By early April, Boot was again wearing the sheep with good control and making lovely, long outruns with enthusiasm. She is still not maintaining sufficient contact with the sheep on the fetch. If the sheep seem to be going the right way, she has a tendency to hang too far back and only come on when called. I am

The trial will be held on October 6 and 7 at the Canaday's Farm in Altamont, New York.

Steve Wetmore said he would try to get Paul Heidenberg to help provide information on what caterers in the area would charge for a dinner on Saturday night, October 6th.

All NEBCA members are invited to help make this Championship Trial a success. Anyone interested in helping out should contact Steve Wetmore, Becky Peterson, or Mike Canaday.

The next NEBCA meeting will be after the Nearfield Farm Trial in Center Conway, NH on September 29th.

working on this by walking away from the flock while she is fetching them. She is learning that she has to stay up to the sheep because I may not be where she thought I was.

The biggest training hurdle we are now trying to surmount, however, is learning the flank commands. Boot will move around the sheep just fine, but she is completely oblivious to anything I am saying. If I move far enough out of balance, she will move to compensate but she has no interest in moving just because I ask her to. This is the next

EDITOR'S NOTES

Well, our trial is over, so we can breathe a little easier and get to work on this issue of the newsletter. Sorry it took so long, but we had to concentrate our efforts on our trial.

This issue contains trial results through August, but the total NEBCA points have been tallied right up through the Hagersville trial in Canada on September 8 & 9 (September results will be printed next month). There are only two more trials until the Championship, so we are pretty close. If you want to count down the top eighteen dogs you can get a good idea of who will be competing in the Fall Foliage Championship on October 6 & 7. Remember that a handler can only enter two dogs.

On the Fall Foliage Championship, we are still in need of volunteers. COME ON OUT AND HELP!! We need sheep people, announcers, score keepers, time keepers, AND don't forget the donations for prizes and advertisements in the program. Call us or Mike Canaday, or Beverly Lambert, or Becky Peterson, or Steve Wetmore. WE NEED YOUR HELP.

FALL FOLIAGE DINNER

On Saturday, October 6, we will have a lamb barbeque for all handlers, family and guests. Tickets are $6.00 per person to cover the lamb, salad, soda and coffee. We ask that all handlers bring a side dish. Please call Paul Heidenburg on (518)966-8738. Paul will coordinate with all handlers what should be brought.

Let us spend the rest of this column on our week in Canada. In our last issue, we told you that we were going out to press right in the middle of trying to get ready to travel into Canada to participate in the Eastern Ontario Triple Crown. What a mess! Trying to pack, get the farm ready for someone else to care for, get that issue out.

On the bright side, we had a great trip. What a treat. All three trials were in lovely settings, and (as we suggested last month) Sheep Dog trials should be fun. THEY WERE! For this family, we were able to spend a lot of time together. Beth Ann and Lauren met new friends. We cannot be more positive on the whole adventure. It would be hard to pick our most favorite of the three trials, but it would have to be Waupoos Island. Why? The sheep were difficult (but not impossible). There were no fences. And the picture on the front cover says it ALL. An empty pen is what most handlers saw when they ran out of time. Over the entire three days less than an dozen dogs got their sheep into the pen.

BUT, Fearnley Davies went all out to make this adventure big step in Boot's training. She needs to learn that we are working the sheep together. Previously she has been working the sheep on her own, using me as a balance point. Now I am asking her to work the sheep to my instructions rather then just her instincts. This is a major step in a young dog's training. The more natural instinct dogs have, the tougher it is for them to accept instructions they don't feel they need. Boot is a dog with tremendous natural ability and a plan of her own.

There is a magic solution to this problem. Patience. Boot's natural ability to gather as pleasurable as he could. He ferried us over to the island late into the night, and ferried us back even later. He put out sheep. He ran the tractors. He made sure that the lamb barbecue went well. He worried over us all having a good time.

Here we were on a 900 acre island, camped on the top of a little knoll, looking out on three sides at Lake Ontario, eating dinner as the full moon rose over the lake. Here we were in the middle of an idyllic vacation spot that any American tourist would give his eye teeth to be at. Here we had to work with difficult sheep that had to be held in only by the dog and handler -- no fences to help us. On the whole? WE HAD A GREAT TIME!

Pittsburg Township was the most difficult of the three. These sheep were not only difficult, they were impossible --BUT THEY WERE GOOD SWIMMERS. At least two of them went for a dip in the St. Lawrence River. One got out to the middle of the river before she was rescued by a passing waterskiier. Peter Piper and his dog (Q T PYE) spent as much time rounding up his sheep by boat as he spent on the field. That was a long trip from Tennessee to see the Canadian side of the river by boat. Still, when we look back on the entire week as a vacation from our normal work-a-day world, we will all and her inbred desire to work for me and please me will eventually win out, if I have enough patience. Many dogs learn to obey commands by gradually improving a little bit with each training session. Boot, alas, belongs to the AHA! class of Border Collies. I work at teaching her something new for days or weeks and we make no progress and then suddenly in one session AHA! she understands it fully. Boot and I worked on flanking through all of April and into early May with almost no progress.

Our training sessions during this period pretty much fell into the same pattern we are still following. Each session begins with an outrun to gather the sheep. I decide which way I want Boot to go on her outrun, and I have her walk on that side of me as we approach the sheep. We then stand and look toward the sheep until I give her the command to go. Sometimes this means calling her back from several false starts, but she is learning to wait and go when I say. This will be very important in Boot's hoped-for future trial career, since she may sometimes have to wait at the post for several minutes for her sheep. Boot is also learning to pick up clues about the location of the sheep from our body positions. At this stage have to admit that it was a worthwhile trip. And, what wonderful campfire stories will be told of THIS adventure.

of her training, if Boot crosses the course I call her back, set her up and send her again. Its not usually necessary to say anything to a dog for doing this. Just calling them back and re-sending them is usually enough. If Boot crosses over again, I call her back again. I will then move a little closer to the sheep so that she gets it right the third time. Working the sheep is her reward for doing the correct outrun. Not working the sheep is her punishment for crossing the course. If Boot lags behind the sheep too much on the fetch, I call her on and she now responds readily. She has improved enormously in this, and I believe the problem will probably disappear as her training progresses.

After the fetch, we then take the sheep for a walk. I walk ahead, and Boot works the sheep up to me. If she allows them to get past me, I turn around and go the other way, giving her the appropriate flank command to turn the sheep back to me.

For a few minutes in each training session, I try to get Boot to flank the way I tell her to. Then we do a few more outruns, a little more wearing, and a little driving. Like most young dogs learning to drive, Boot can go a few feet and then tries to sneak around the flock to bring the sheep back to me. I correct this with a soft "uh uhh" or "no, Boot, here". Again, the secret is to do a little bit and wait for the lesson to sink in. As in learning the flanks, it takes a lot of short little driving lessons for the notion to take hold. Like all of the early training, this all takes a lot of repetition and patience. It is no good going out to the sheep determined to "teach the d*** dog" to flank today. Boot will learn in her own time. All I can do is attempt to show her as clearly as possible what I want her to do and wait for her to learn it.

Quite suddenly in mid-May both flanking and driving seemed to take hold for Boot. She began to flank quite readily when I commanded her to. She still doesn't know which command is for which direction, but she does know that the commands are for running around the flock. She also became much more willing to drive the sheep. She positions herself on the heavy side of the sheep and keeps walking until I tell her to flank around the flock and bring them back. This results in some strange journeys, but her intentions are good.

This is the beginning of the part of the training I enjoy the most. Boot is now working for me and she is trying very hard to learn what I want. We can now practice for 10 minutes to half an hour at a time. I try to practice with her before I go to work in the morning or after work in the evening. We do an occasional long straight drive or a few very short drives. Primarily, however, I am working hard to teach Boot her flanks. We spend part of each session on flank commands, interspersed with fetching and outruns. I am asking Boot to do more complicated outruns. I send her from where she can't see the sheep. I position the sheep in places where she has to approach them up hills. I have her lift them off the fence or out of a corner. I ask her to fetch them over the stream or near heavy pressure. I am now using Boot more and more around the farm. When I move sheep from field to field I use Boot. When the sheep get out, I use Boot. However, I don't use her worming or working the young lambs or in other places where I am likely to run short of patience with the sheep and the dog. I have more experienced dogs that can do this work, and so I can wait until Boot is more mature before asking her to do a grown dog's work for an uneven tempered handler. Practical experience is the best teacher of all for a young dog, but it is important to continue to handle the dog with the same patience and gentleness that they have learned to expect all through their train-

SPECIAL END OF THE SEASON NURSERY TRIAL SUMMARY

A REMINDER TO ALL NURSERY TRIALERS:

You may run your dog in only one class. If you move up a class, your dog must stay there (exception -- a Ranch dog may run in Open and drop back to ranch if he does not place in Open). Two people are not allowed to run the same dog in different classes. If you have moved your dog up a class and want to bring him down because you've realized he's not ready, you must request permission from the Nursery Trials Committee.

Also, trial managers are not expected to be policemen. We're working on the honor system. That's why updated points are listed in the newsletter for nursery dogs throughout the trial season. Please refer to the list and tally where your dog belongs. For those who forgot, here's how points are figured:

1. The trial must be a qualifying trial:

1990 Qualified Nursery Trials:

5/6/90 Cooperlane Farm Nursery Trial

5/13/90 Nearfield Farm Nursery Trial

If anyone ever has a question as to how many points their dog has, just call Eve Marschark at 215-795-2023 before 9 p.m. I would be happy to help.

It seems with each year the Nursery Trials are running better and smoother, but there are still a few glitches to work out. All suggestions and observations are welcomed. The Nursery Trials Committee is discussing some changes for the 1991 season. Please contact either Lynnette or myself with your concerns.

Thank you. Happy Trialing!

Eve Marschark

VIDEO REVIEW

by Kristen Whittle

"Training the Working Border Collie" is a well organized 2-part training series put together by Tony and Barbara Collins of Ruthin, Wales. Many of you know of Barbara from her many years as the editor of the Working Sheepdog News and co-author of the book "A Way of Life" with H. Glyn Jones. Her husband Tony is a well known and accomplished handler and trainer in Wales.

The first tape goes over all the basics from selecting a pup to early handling and training, while the second tape gets you started on the different phases of work. Both tapes are rather long (about 90 minutes) and I found it nice to have a remote with fast forward handy. But for the beginner they do a good job of emphasizing important points and concepts of training. I think it is difficult to put together a good training tape that will cover everyone's needs, since no two dogs approach working identically. But I like what this couple has to say and, thanks to Barbara's writing and editing skills, it is well presented.

There are an awful lot of videos out there that I would recommend a beginner not see! This video I would recommend for its sound ideas. Even the most advanced handler will enjoy not only the countryside and the variety of dogs presented, but the treat of watching Merion Jones, 1988 International Supreme Champion and his dog Spot.

This video is available to NEBCA members through the Lending Library.

For more information about reserving it, contact Beverly Lambert at Dickey Hill Road RFD #1, Brooks, ME 04921 (207)525-3223.
