Tips on taking digital photos for NEBCA News: Set your camera to the highest resolution before you take the picture. The photo will use more memory, but will look best in print. When sending these large files by e-mail, please zip them first.

You can also scan prints to send by email. Again, choose a higher resolution before you scan and zip the file to send.

You may also send your prints by snail mail to the Editor. Enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope if you want your photo back! (Note: use a regular US stamp—I cross the border almost weekly, so can mail from a US postbox easily.)

Articles will be accepted based on relevance to the working Border Collie and the mission of the Northeast Border Collie Association. All articles may be edited for content.

Tips for sending articles / trial results etc. Send in text (.txt) or word (.doc). Please don't overly format your work, as I cannot cut & paste into Publisher without lots of re-formatting first! Please don't send in Excel, save your excel files as .txt (in WordPad) and then send! Thanks!

2005 NEBCA Supreme Champions Beverly Lambert & Bill Submitted by the Open Trial Committee

NEBCA's supreme champion is the highest honor a dog and handler can achieve here in the northeast region. The recipient must win both the high points competition and the fall foliage championship in the same year. Not an easy feat and one, which has only been done twice before. By winning the high points competition, the team has shown they can consistently perform at many different trials across the region, competing on different courses, different sheep, and different terrain. It also shows the team has come through when the going is tough, when dealt a difficult group of sheep or running in the heat of the day. The Fall Foliage also requires more than a simply a lucky run. The fall foliage is a two round competition with a qualifying round and a double lift final. Thus the winner must demonstrated not just consistency but also the skills required for a double gather. We were also fortunate in 2005 to have sufficient sheep available to add an international shed to the final. which demonstrates vet more ability and skill.

est qualifying round score, 96 out of 110 and in the final, Bill scored 138 of 170, besting all other competitors by over 10 points. Bev & Bill most certainly deserve NEBCA's highest honor. On behalf of the Open Trial commitand all vour friends and fellow handlers in NEBCA, I offer our sincere congratulations and true respect for a great achievement and for setting a high standard for all to strive for.

Below, Beverly provides some interesting background and insights about Bill.

"Bill and I got off to a bit of a rocky start. I agreed to buy him, sight unseen from Alasdair MacRae, and was very pleased when I did see him to find him not only very handsome but extremely personable. He went right to work for me and looked like a real winner. At our first big trial together, the Blue Grass in Kentucky, he was great-finishing the top five each run and while a bit clueless in the doublelift final he tried really hard. Had we turned East from that point I think we would have been all right, but instead we headed out West for a series of tough trials finishing in California. I suspect now that our partnership was just not firm enough to withstand the very tough sheep out there. By the time the series ended Bill was running right over the top of me and looked way too much dog for a little old librarian. I was worried. Our performance did not noticeable improve during the remainder of the year and I went home after the Finals determined to fix over the winter what ailed us. I had seen Bill run so well at the beginning of the season I knew there was a good dog in there; I just needed to find a way for us to work together.

So we practiced. I would like to say that there was some magic moment when we came together but there wasn't. I went into the next season still unsure of our success. Bill had always been great at home and pretty good on the road in the northeast but I couldn't know if we were going to be the team I wanted until we got to the western sheep again. The rest as they say is history. Bill and I had a great second season and we have continued to improve as a team.

I have only ever run one other dog that is as much fun as Bill on the trial field. Bill is a great mix of tremendous power and biddability. He is the most powerful dog I have ever run and that power is what makes him so much fun. Sheep almost never question him. He comes around the top of the field (Continued on page 4)

2005 NEBCA Supreme Ch. Bill

This past trial season Beverly and Bill accomplished both feats most convincingly. In the high points competition, Bill's 12 trial aggregate score was 748 points! That's an average of over 62 points per trial and in that group there were three first, three second, and three third place finishes. In the Fall Foliage, Bill had the high-with complete confidence that the sheep will flee before him and I have seldom seen him disappointed. He has a great sense of balance so when we run in the strong western winds and nobodies dog can hear, Bill is often triumphant and pushes sheepstraightdown the field to me. Some of our most fun wins have been in the teeth of western gales when all the handlers could do was hold on to their hats and hope for the best.

I have been pleasantly surprised that Bill has been able to take that strong push and power and tone it down enough to be successful on the milder eastern sheep. I think that his success here is primarily a tribute to his nice nature. He is always obedient, when he can hear me. This obedience allows me to temper his strong push and keep him back off his sheep.

I appreciate my good fortune in Bill. Not only is he fun and successful on the trial field but he is the nicest male dog with whom I have ever been fortunate enough to be associated. I am now training and running some of his youngsters and I have high hopes for them as well. It sure was my lucky day when I told Alasdair I was sure if he was good enough for him to run he was good enough for me."

Pedigree for Beverley Lambert's Bill

A Charming Subject (NOT!) By Sue Schoen, V.M.D.

Vomiting and Diarrhea. Not a charming pair of topics. But what dog owner has not dealt with these problems? I rarely make it through a dog trial, or a day at work, without someone bringing them up (so to speak). I never mind. I went to vet school because I was not allowed to discuss such things at the dinner table. In vet school you can take an entire course in gastroenteritis in any number of species.

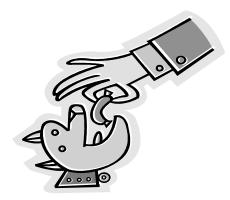

Vomiting

The symptoms are quite distressing (often, more so for the owner than for the dog), but often resolve quickly with proper treatment. Obviously, a more serious problem can provoke the GI tract. When symptoms first appear it may be impossible to distinguish a serious from a trivial episode. Therefore, despite anything you read in this article the correct answer is always "CALL THE VET" if you are concerned. A good receptionist can help you decide if you need to be seen, and should always encourage you to come in if you believe it is necessary. Much better to been seen for a nonproblem than to wait too long and regret it later. In some cases, waiting can have dire consequences. I will never forget opening up a golden retriever puppy that had been vomiting for a few days. His intestines were destroyed by pieces of carpet he had swallowed. His owners waited too long, hoping he would get better on his own. There was nothing we could do to save him. But happily, these situations are not the norm.

Let's start with an apparently healthy, vomiting dog. Remember, dogs are scavengers and hunters. They relish things that we consider disgusting. If a meal does not agree with a dog's digestion (dead ripe seagull) or if it contains too much non-digestible material (bones, socks, or paper towels) the dog's solution is to purge himself through vomition (digested stomach contents) or regurgitation (undigested stomach contents). Often after purging, a dog is bright, alert and eager to eat again. Right away. This kind of indigestion is no big deal and can be pretty much ignored. You clean the rug, bungee the trash can, and watch for other signs of illness- but probably the case is closed.

In slightly more severe cases, a dog can feel pretty lousy after multiple episodes of vomiting (you'd feel about the same way). He may be dehydrated and depressed. It is helpful to know if the dog has a fever. This could indicate an infectious gastroenteritis. It can be hard to tell in these cases whether something more serious is going on, but again most dogs will respond to simple, supportive treatment. My rule of thumb is that if the dog is eager to go for a walk and wants to eat you can afford to give it a bit of time (hours, not days). Otherwise, call the vet. Your dog may be fine, but it is worth the phone call.

The most important thing to do in all cases of vomiting is to fast the dog for at least 24 hours. However, almost EVERYONE FEEDS THE DOG. I think people want the reassurance of a good appetite. Remember, adult dogs can go days without eating with no consequence. As hunters, they are adapted to an intermittent food supply. (Note: you cannot fast a small puppy for any length of time as their blood sugar will drop dangerously. Call a vet for a sick puppy.). Often if you try to feed a vomiting dog, he won't eat. If he does, he may bring it right back up. It can be especially disturbing when your dog is unable to keep down water, but if he is dehydrated he will guzzle the whole bowl. The stomach full of water makes him queasy, and up it comes. The thing to do is to offer the dog ice cubes or small amounts of water frequently.

If the dog seems ok after a fast, he can be re-introduced to bland food like boiled hamburger and steamed white rice. I have people feed this for 3-4 days and gradually re-introduce the normal diet.

If a dog does not respond to simple supportive treatment or, is obviously very distressed from the get-go, more aggressive diagnostics and therapy are required. A dog which vomits every two hours or, vomits for more than a 24 hour period, can't hold down small amounts of water, or appears painful, has a serious problem. Possible causes include a foreign body which is causing an obstruction (common in puppies and young dogs who eat rocks, carpet, plastic etc); toxic exposure (mushrooms, poisons, medications); infectious disease; metabolic disease (pancreatitis, liver or kidney failure); or cancer. The dog's signalment (age, sex, breed etc) can suggest possible reasons for the problem (e.g., cancer is more likely in an older dog whereas a foreign body is more likely in a puppy living in a house full of peanut butter covered Legos). Radiographs, blood work or surgery will be necessary in a dog that continues to vomit despite simple, supportive care.

For a dog that can't take water orally, subcutaneous or intravenous fluids can be essential to correct previous and continuing fluid losses. Dehydration is extremely debilitating and is often the most profound consequence of vomiting. In a dog with an infectious gastroenteritis (viral or bacterial like Parvovirus or hemorrhagic gastroenteritis) fluid therapy is the mainstay of treatment. If a dog has eaten a rock he will probably need fluid therapy to stabilize him for surgery. Even in fairly simple cases of gastritis fluids just makes a dog feel a

NEBCA Annual Meeting: January 21, 2006, Deerfield, MA Minutes submitted by Maria Mick, Secretary

Meeting called to order by Denise Leonard at 10:18AM, 32 members present.

President's Report

Denise thanked Emily for arranging for the meeting site. The minutes from the last meeting at the Cooperstown trial were not available and so would have to be approved at the next meeting.

Secretary's Report - membership status (given by Maria Mick)

As of 1-20-06, membership stands at 154 members including 44 family memberships. There are currently 11 included in the breeders directory and 6 in the website breeders directory. There is one member who has paid for a yearly ad for the newsletter. There are 5 life memberships.

Treasurer's Report - financial summary for 2005 (given by Maria Amodei)

Maria stated that the fund raising went well but trial costs were expensive especially considering the prizes and renting of site facilities. We had purchased fencing in 2005 but there were also some trials who utilized club fencing without pay-

The current balance is about $12,600 (see budget provided). Motion to accept the treasurer's report by Gene Sheninger and seconded by Betty Levin.

Election committee - election results (given by Steve Wetmore)

Election for two open Board of Director positions (to join Warren Mick and Mary Ellen Young): Dick Williams – 1, Roger Deschambeault - 3, Bud Ames - 3, Emily Yazwinski – 17, Sally Lacy - 53, Betty Levin - 50, Eve Marschark - 44, Bernie Armata - 41

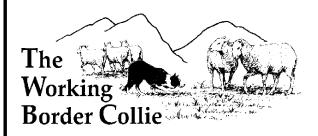

Based on the votes cast Sally and Betty will be the two new directors

Board of Directors (given by Sue Schoen)

Sue said no significant issues came before the board in 2005 and there was nothing to report.

Open Trials committee (given by Warren Mick)

In summary, the 2005 Fall Foliage (FF) was at the same site as in 2004, (Amherst, MA) and came in close to budget. The FF breakdown costs will be in spring newsletter. There are no more expenses anticipated. There are no proposals for a

Sue Schoen presented the two proposed open rule changes (for the FF) that were included in the winter newsletter.

Proposal 1 was amended to the following: "A handler may enter no more than three qualified dogs. The Trials committee will decide if handlers may run two or three dogs based on the number of dogs entered that year. Only 2 dogs per handler may advance to the final round." Proposal 1 as amended was passed.

Proposal 2 was passed as written in the newsletter: "If the number of entries is sufficiently low, the required number of placings may be reduced from three to two. The Trials committee will make this determination."

Novice Trials committee (given by Rob Drummond)

Rob stated that the 2005 novice finals (NF) held in Hopkinton NH went very well but was not well attended and came in over budget. The committee worked very hard to put on a really good event for participants. Nice awards, good sheep and a good sheep handling crew. Unfortunately the trial coincided with the peak in gas prices after the hurricane and that hurt attendance more than the location. Only 25 handlers and 35 dogs competed in the trial. Trial income was low due to the low attendance and there some unexpected expenses and some that were higher than planned.

A long discussion followed on how to increase attendance and better control expenses for the Novice Finals. Rose Redick said not all novice handlers are willing to travel long distances to attend trials and suggested asking members for input.

Carol motioned that the membership be surveyed regarding the novice finals and novice trial program. The survey would be put in the spring newsletter. Motion seconded by Rob and passed. Carol agreed work with the committees to prepare the survey.

Rob said the committee had dealt with several requests to drop dogs down one class. The committee addressed these individually did not feel any changes to the guidelines were needed.

Calendar Committee report (Given by George Northrop)

George stated that nearly all of the six hundred year 2006 calendars were sold. He recommended that no more than 600 – 2007 calendars be printed in 2006. Gene motioned that we print up to 600 calendars with the price not to exceed $3000. Seconded by Warren Mick and passed.

Newsletter report (given by Warren Mick for Fiona Robertson)

Fiona has agreed to continue as newsletter editor for 2006. As always, she is always eager to receive articles and material from members. Emily Yazwinski has volunteered once again to assist Fiona in compiling trial results but it may be more efficient to forward trial write-ups and results to Fiona directly. Everyone present expressed appreciation to Fiona for doing a great job.

Gene Sheninger motioned that the newsletter have a budget of $3100 for 2006. The motion was seconded by Maria Amodei and passed.

Library report (given by Denise Leonard for Martha Walke)

Martha would like suggestions for new purchases. Doug McDonough suggested that the library should consider converting some of the older VHS tapes to DVD.

Barb Armata motioned to budget $300 for the library. The motion was seconded by Rose Redick and passed.

Fund Raising Report (given by Joanne Krause)

Joanne requested help with the fund raising activities this year. Artwork is needed by the end of March and should be mentioned in the newsletter.

Barb Armata motioned that we budget $2000 for hats & T-shirts this year. The motion was seconded by Joyce Westcott and passed.

Committee Appointments

Denise said committee appointments were not yet decided but would be provided in the Spring Newsletter.

Update on 2007 Finals Bid (given by Gene Sheninger)

Gene reported on the work of the committee formed at the Cooperstown trial to submit a proposal to the USBCHA to host the National Finals on the east coast in 2007. Gene said the finals committee would need to raise $30,000-50,000 to put on the finals and already has approximately $7500. The Mid Atlantic Border Collie Rescue Association, which has 501(c)(7) non-profit status, has agreed to act as sponsoring organization for the finals and all donations would be tax deductible. The proposed site is in Gettysburg, PA, which is an existing event venue with the needed facilities. A flock of 1200 sheep located about 50 miles away may be available.

Gene motioned that NEBCA fund the national finals effort by donating $5,000 in two yearly installments of $2500 towards having the finals in Gettysburg in 2007. Motion was amended by Gene to state that should the finals not take place in the northeast in 2007 that the amount donated thus far would be returned to NEBCA and that if the finals produces a net profit, NEBCA would have a say in determining how its portion of said profit is dispersed. The motion as amended was passed with one abstention.

Trial Budgets for 2006

Gene Sheninger motioned a $1600 budget for the Fall Foliage trial. The motion was seconded by Warren Mick and passed.

Bernie Armata motioned that the Novice Finals budget be $800. The motion was amended by Bernie to increase the budget to $1200. The motion as amended was passed.

Other business from the floor

Sally Lacy provided an update on the BC health studies she is involved with. She said more dogs were needed for the DSL hip study. This study also is pursuing a DNA test for hip problems. The epilepsy study also continues. Handouts were provided.

Steve Wetmore suggested that we give national recognition to Bev Lambert and Bill as the newest NEBCA Supreme Champion by putting a congratulatory announcement in The American Border Collie Magazine. Gene noted that the ABC magazine editor has promised free ads for any contributor to the nationals.

Fran Wheeler stated that this year is the 50th year for the Blue Hill Fair SDT in Maine and suggested giving recognition to trial managers Jim and May Davidson for having the longest running trial in the US. Betty Levin made the motion for no more than $100 for a recognition award to the Davidson's. The motion was seconded by Bernie Armata and passed.

In the Mind of a Champion - A Review By Deb Mickey

Like many I go to clinics, read and watch everything I can get my hands on, and try not to be too big a bother when pumping experienced handlers for knowledge. Denise Wall, successful sheepdog trialer and master photographer, has done us a great favor by providing this wonderful opportunity to get inside the minds of two of the most accomplished handlers we have today.

Denise and StilHope Productions have taken quality videos of Scott Glenn's 2001 and Alasdair MacRae's 2004 winning runs at the Bluegrass Classic Open Stockdog Trial and paired them with running commentary from these handlers. Both runs shown on this DVD are of the double lift finals competition. The DVD starts with an explanation of the course requirements displayed with clear graphics and narration.

Scott and Alasdair describe what was happening almost step-by-step. They explain their strategies, honestly own up to their errors, and give wonderful insight into what was going on between the dog and sheep. Both runs end with the International Shed and pen — shedding then penning 5 collared sheep from the flock of 20 that were taken around the course. Just watching and listening to these two men as they work the shed is worth the cost of the DVD.

For this still self-professed newbie with six years in the sport, the handling insights provided are exciting to hear and thought provoking. The skill these handlers show reading the stock, their dogs, and the impact of the course layout is a lesson in itself. If I could be granted one wish, though, it would be that the DVD provided the breakdown of their scores following each run, but I expect to wear out this DVD by playing it again and again to squeeze out every drop of knowledge it provides.

In the Mind of a Champion is just that – a rare insight into the minds of a couple of our greats. For more information on this DVD, contact Denise at cdwall@mindspring.com or go to Geri Byrne's Border Collies in Action web site:

Comments:

- Not all 2006 calendar sales are in 2005, some are in 2006
- Shirts and Hats sold very well for almost $1,300 profit
- Trial expense was extremely high. Some of this was awards which can easily be reduced. Some was facilities cost, more of a challenge to reduce. Some was lack of entry fees, also a challenge to remedy.
- Insurance includes a portion of the 2006 premium
- Some 2005 membership monies were credited in 2004
- Fence rental is low. We have no system in place to track which trials are using the fence so we can get paid. We did purchase the fence outright this year, along with some posts, etc. for repairs which shows on the fence rental line. We paid some 2004 trial expense in 2005

East Coast National Finals 2007 Update

Submitted by Barbara Levinson

On behalf of the 2007 Finals Bid Committee, we would like to update the NEBCA membership on what is going on with our efforts to bring the 2007 USBCHA finals to the East Coast.

Recently, we negotiated an agreement for use of a site in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. This venue will make a tremendous finals field, with plenty of room for spectators, parking and vendors. It is also centrally located on the East Coast and within easy driving distance for several cities and airports. The USBCHA has been in contact with us encouraging our participation in the Finals bid process and we anticipate submitting our formal bid to the USBCHA shortly.

The process of putting the 2007 finals bid together has already been quite a learning experience. One of the first things we learned was that most clubs, like NEBCA, are not set up to legally handle the type of fundraising needed for an event the size of the finals. In order to do this properly, we have teamed with Mid-Atlantic Border Collie Rescue, a 501(c)(3) non profit organization, which provides Border Collie rescue services throughout the region. This partnership will allow for contributions to the 2007 finals to be legally tax deductible!

Check the NEBCA website and newsletter for updates on the progress of bringing the 2007 USBCHA finals to Gettysburg!

We are sure many NEBCA members will participate— as competitors, volunteers or spectators. And, of course, we would welcome any fund raising ideas!

Coyote Attack Part II: Saving #30

By: Anonymous Shepherd

Some of us get sentimental about our animals, especially if they have been around a while, are great mothers and despite their age are still lambing well, that was the way it was with poor # 30. (This is her story).

Eddy slewed the trailer to the side door of the barn in a manner only a farmer can do. One side parked to cut off escape, the other open enough to operate the tailgate and door thing that allowed animals of various sizes and shapes to be loaded and unloaded. Dog took up position on the open side in his all-knowing way and I threw down a bale of hay under the tailgate for a step and to cut off yet another escape route.

Eddy struggled with the pins, bent and rusted with use. "You'll have to get the bar" he said "behind the seat somewhere." I headed off to the cab, lurched the bench seat back forward and was amazed at the amount of stuff that had accumulated in such a small space, what wasn't in here I thought? I rummaged, finding an odd looking steel bar with a point on one end bent in a semi twisted shape, I finally recognized it as a tool that had once performed a specific task, but that, no longer possible!

I hurried to the rear of the trailer, "That's it" cried Eddy "couldn't do without it" (I marveled at how anyone could do anything at all with it?) With a quick flick of the wrist the pins shot out and the tailgate groaned open to a near horizontal position finally binding completely. Faces appeared nervous with anticipation, Dog had crept forward, "Get back" was the curt command, first one ewe and then the rest were off the trailer and in the barn, finally #30; we helped carry her down, blood still oozing down the injured leg.

I knew it was a matter of time, I had to attend to the wound right away, blood loss and infection serious considerations. #30 was still putting some weight on the leg, which to me was a good sign, but she was still bleeding, the skin that had been ripped away was 4 hand spans wide, from below the hip to behind the knee, and there were pockets of skin collecting blood and ooze. I put her in a stall and set about cleaning and washing the wound, cutting away the hanging skin and wool. I pressed against her flank, hoping the whole while she wouldn't lie down before I had finished the task. I cleaned the area with water and peroxide and made a rudimentary bandage of gauze and duct tape. I gave her fresh water and some grain, which she ate greedily! Another good sign, I thought.

I was tidying the stall and putting in hay when my wife appeared at the door, noticing that the bandage was already coming off and blood still seeped down the leg into the stall. We agreed that if we were going to try and save her we needed to call the vet. A lot of farmers would have elected to put her down at this point but 2005 had been a bad year for losses of all kinds! and it was time to tempt fate.

We gave 30 a shot of penicillin and made the call. Errands awaited and I set off to town, dog next to me on the passenger seat. When I returned I saw the familiar profile of the vet's pickup in the drive, its large beige fiberglass insert, filling the box, full of drawers and cupboards for all kinds of eventuality. The back door was open and André was standing talking to my wife. A vet ready for business, he was in his blue boiler suit with the sleeves rolled up to the elbows, freshly washed black rubber boots and hands rough and squeaky clean. My wife was holding some medication in her arms.

"Its bad" André said " If she had a small patch of skin missing I would be optimistic but this is going to take weeks or months to heal, and the risk of infection its high, I can perform some surgery and prescribe a variety of medication but frankly cannot guarantee the outcome. In all fairness it is not worth the cost. I have given a shot for tetanus, and more antibiotics. If you have time and are willing I have an avenue for you to pursue that may work, I would like to check when I'm passing.

"You should keep her in the stall and bed her on straw, keeping the bedding clean. Straw won't stick to the wound like the wood shavings you're using. Take her out every day and wash the wound with cold water under pressure for five minutes or more, the water will cleanse the area and stimulate healing. As the healing starts, the area will begin to itch. I could prescribe another type of dressing, but think that BluKote will do just as well. Pat the entire area dry and spray the wound every day.

"Provided she maintains a good appetite and appears bright she has a chance, she is in good shape. You will have to administer a course of antibiotics and give vitamin B for her blood loss. Good luck!" and with that he was off!

I looked at my Wife "what do think?" "We should try!" she said. I knew it was going to be hard on her, since I was going to be away for work for a couple of weeks and she was going to have to manhandle #30 each day by her self. We figured a way to tether the ewe to the side of the barn outside the door within reach of the hose, It was early November but still mild enough for us to use the hose outside. The first few days were quite a challenge, as #30 spent a good deal of time laying down and was very stubborn about being led out of the stall. She slipped her harness several times and headed into the empty barn. I had to take to using the large chestnut crook that I kept hanging by the loft door to restrain her, as a Hampshire/Cheviot cross and five years old she weighs in at about 175lbs. She is big boned and muscular, and despite the weak leg, I would go through what I call the Harry Potter moment when you either stop dead or are airborne on the end of a stick.

André the vet had warned us that the first couple of weeks would be the most critical, the wound being so large that it would heal very slowly, the holes in the muscle were large but the muscle was not torn. Blood still formed when she put weight on her leg but after the first week she was able to put more weight with no bleeding, the blue coat all but obliterated the flesh, its dark purple glaring against the white wool.

Eight days after we brought her home it was time for me to leave on a job, I was going to be away for at least two weeks maybe more. At least after the first week, #30 was a lot easier to entice out of her stall, but was still determined to turn into the open barn rather than be led out the side door. I told my wife I'd call every day and set off that morning. Into the third week #30 was walking, scabs beginning to come away, five more days and more scab material - the skin pink underneath. By 3 weeks she was bellowing from the barn and not eating very much. My wife called the Vet. André said if she's still alive let her out with the flock. By December 1st although the wound still looked horrible, she was out and almost running.

I finally came home on my birthday December 8th. #30 and my wife had survived the ordeal, Its now February 2006 and the wound is almost completely healed. The skin and wool have returned and she is sprightly and healthy.

Perseverance does pay off! It's a good beginning to a New Year for the man out standing in his field.

Trial Results

Bittersweet Farm Fall Novice Trial, Hampton, CT, Nov.4-5, 2005. Results from Sheepdog-L

Hosts: Carol & Larry Campion Judge: Sue Schoen, Cape Cod, MA

The Bittersweet Novice Trial was held this past weekend in CT at the Farm of Larry & Carol Campion. The sheep were well suited to the novice trial-each handler drew a lot of two Kathadin ewes and one Border Leicester/Cheviot cross ewe. The ewes were used to dogs but not often worked and if treated right were lovely to handle. The level of handling and the quality of dogs and training allowed for controlled and successful runs. The judging was ably executed by Sue Schoen of Cape Cod Massachusetts. Many folks pitched in to make the trial run smoothly and a big thanks goes to them, as usual.

Thanks to those in the pen: Val Pietrazsewska and Ellen Rusconi Black & Carol Campion; set out was done by Chris Bowen (Chris, an open handler, made a special effort to come just to help hold out), Emily Yazwinski, Tom Leigh, Carol Campion & Lorna McMasters; scribes: Martha Walke, Carol Lockhart, & Kate Collins and thanks to Ellen Rusconi-Black & Carol Campion for the great soups on Sat & Sunday!

Special thanks to Carolyn West, Ann Devine and Yvonne Elwood who donated hours of their time ahead of the trial to help paint the panels, set up fencing and set up the course. If there is anyone I missed, forgive me and thank you for the help. Carol.

A Charming Subject (NOT!)

Chronic Vomiting

Chronic vomiting can be a challenge to diagnose and, even if intermittent, can indicate a long term underlying problem. Some dogs have extremely sensitive stomachs; others can eat anything. Some can eat once every 24 hours while other dogs require more frequent feeding to prevent empty stomach vomiting. I have good luck with my own dogs by feeding them the same food every day and limited table food.

If you are lucky, vomiting will be short and sweet, but the GI tract is a continuous organ and often a problem that starts in the stomach makes itself known downstream as well. Or diarrhea can occur all on it's own.

Diarrhea

As with vomiting an otherwise healthy dog may have a brief period of being "loose." If the dog is acting fine and wants to eat, a short 24 fast and return to a bland diet may be all that is needed. I like to have people feed the bland diet until they see a formed stool- usually 3-4 days. Some people like to use Imodium, Pepto Bismol or Kaopectate to control the situation. This may be necessary when traveling in close quarters but I prefer to let the problem run its course. Quite a few people at trials seem to have Flagyl (metronidazole). This is an anaerobic antibiotic that can be helpful in refractory cases of diarrhea but it can be quite toxic so it should only be used under veterinary care and NOT in every case of diarrhea. I almost never use metronidazole right off the bat. Most cases will respond to simple measures. Often, once the GI tract is emptied and allowed to rest for a day or so the problem will be resolved.

As with vomiting, a dog which is feeling lousy, or does not respond to simple supportive measures, merits veterinary attention. Diarrhea can be rather dramatic also. Small bowel diarrhea (upstream in the intestinal tract) can involve large volumes of liquid diarrhea which occurs with normal frequency. Large bowel diarrhea worries people the most because the dog has to go frequently with great urgency (as in the crate) and can involve straining, blood and mucous. Again this can be rather alarming but if the dog is acting ok the symptoms will probably pass with simple supportive care. If the dog is obviously distressed, or won't eat or drink, seek help. Often a stool sample is helpful. None of the advice in this article is to be taken as a substitute for appropriate diagnostics and treatment. Diarrhea can be dehydrating requiring fluid therapy and prolonged symptoms can indicate serious underlying disease such as inflammatory bowel disease, parasitism, or infectious or metabolic disease.

NEBCA NOVICE SURVEY

The Novice Handlers are the future of the border collie. NEBCA has always been aware of this and has been at the forefront of initiating programs to encourage newcomers into the sport while helping the novices along their way to becoming open handlers. NEBCA has been innovative in creating a full Novice program and many other clubs use NEBCA as their role model.

Even though we have been active in supporting the novice classes, most notably with the Novice Championships in September of each year, the numbers attending these events in recent years has fallen off. This is a cause for concern within the club as it is felt it may be an indicator of change within the club; a change that may dictate a new approach is needed to fully reach out to the novice dogs and handlers in the region.

With this in mind, we are undertaking a survey to try to get some idea as to what the membership and especially what handlers / trialers needs are and what expectations these handlers have as to how the club can help them. We would appreciate responses from both Open & Novice handlers.

Please take the time to fill out this survey and return it to Chris Bowen, 552 Sawyers Crossing Road, Swanzey, NH 03446 by March 31, 2006. The Novice Trials Committee and the Open Trials Committee needs time to review the survey and deliberate on what approach may best fit the needs of the club for this upcoming trialing season. Thank You!

BREEDER'S DIRECTORY

This listing of breeders of Border Collies is for informational purposes only and in no way represents an endorsement of these breeders by the Northeast Border Collie Association. When making inquiries for purchasing a pup, NEBCA strongly recommends selecting from sound, proven, working stock. We suggest you see both parents work. If you are not able to see the parents working at the farm, do attend the trials and see them working there. Watch for trial results and seek the advice of experienced handlers.
